

Staff Learning

We offer training and qualifications designed for your industry. Our goal is to ensure you see tangible benefits from the training.

Consulting

We constantly update our learning and development to encompass the most recent legislation, industry knowledge and best practice.

Support

We strongly believe in customer focus and strive, along with our partners, to achieve given goals or outcomes to benefit the employee and employer.

Funded on the job training in the meat industry

Quality and productivity are critical in the meat industry.

You need to be able to meet your production targets while ensuring that you maintain the right standard.

We have helped a lot of companies in the meat industry to train their employees on the job helping to improve quality and efficiency.

“We have been working with Polaris Learning for several years. They deliver training at our Coupar Angus, Broxburn and Cambuslang sites. The trainers use their knowledge of the site and the industry to ensure that the training always meets all our requirements and meets the needs of the site. Our Staff are more than happy with what they learn from their Modern Apprenticeship qualification. We see an improvement in the staff and production following the training. We particularly see an improvement after food hygiene training”

Fiona Robb, Site Trainer, Vion Halls.

The benefits

Our clients report the following benefits from the training:

- It refreshes food hygiene, and health & safety training and meets the FSA requirements and there is no additional cost to you.
- Quality is a focus as employees get a better understanding of what is required.
- Auditors and clients can see our commitment to quality.
- They work within our procedures and ensure everyone does what is required- an extra quality check.
- We can show we invest in our people and there is no cost to us.
- It has helped us develop our people for QA and supervisory roles.

Polaris Learning- specialist training and consultancy services to help you develop a competent and motivated workforce.

“Polaris Learning has been our training partner for a year now and I am delighted to see our first group of staff achieve their SVQ’s in Food manufacturing Levels 2 and 3. It is great to see new skills coming to light and a greater confidence amongst the team.

This emerges in areas such as team meetings where people are speaking up more, sharing their ideas as well as taking on more responsibility within their areas. In the harsh economic times we face right now, Macsween are investing more in training and developing than ever before.

The staff from Polaris Learning are great and really understand how to win the confidence of the staff, many of whom are very anxious about any sort of training. We look forward to more success in the coming year.”

Jo Macsween, Director, Macsween of Edinburgh Ltd.

A bit about Polaris Learning

We have been training in the food industry for over seventeen years. Our trainers have specialist food industry backgrounds and have worked in a variety of roles in fish factories, as butchers, and in other food and drink production. They are experienced and qualified in areas such as health & safety, food hygiene, animal and poultry welfare, working instructions as well as internal audits and HACCP.

We tailor our training to fit around your production requirements and your processes. The training is on the job with a focus on practical benefits for the employee and the employer. With their knowledge of your industry, they can help with productivity and quality issues with minimal interruption to your employees work load.
